An Opportunity to Support Public Interest Cybersecurity

Join us in Washington, D.C. for the UC Berkeley Center for Long-Term Cybersecurity's third annual Cyber Civil Defense Summit (CCDS) on June 11th, 2025.

This one-of-a-kind gathering of cyber defenders, academics, and policymakers returns in 2025 with the mission of protecting the most vulnerable public infrastructure against cybersecurity threats. We anticipate an audience of 200+ in-person attendees, expanding on our sold-out success in 2024.

A limited number of exclusive sponsorship opportunities will allow industry sponsors to showcase their commitment to enhancing the cyber resilience of civic organizations often overlooked in cybersecurity.

About the Summit

This day-long, in-person event hosts exclusive keynotes and panels by government, industry and civil-society leaders in cyber defense to discuss respective and shared priorities, share insights, and build collaborations for impactful change. The result: an intimate space for cross-sector conversations between academics, volunteers, and policymakers on how we can work together to protect under-resourced vulnerable community organizations like hospitals, cities, school districts, and nonprofits.

The Cyber Civil Defense Summit, held annually since 2023, has featured keynote addresses from CISA Director Jen Easterly, former Head of CISO Advisory at Cisco Wendy Nather, and Paula Starr, CIO of the Cherokee Nation. Check out full recaps of the 2023 and 2024 Summits.
